

"DAN" SULLY PUT HER CASH IN SOAP; IT WASHED AWAY

Now the Wife of Dr. Savage Is Suing Former Cotton King for $15,000

WISHED TO BUY COTTON

Loss of the Money Broke the Friendship of Mrs. Sully and Mrs. Savage.

A story was told in a trial before Justice O'Gorman to-day of the disruption of social ties of the closest and dearest kind between the families of Dr. Thomas R. Savage, of No. 151 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street, and Daniel F. Sully, one time "Cotton King," who lived at No. 225 Fifth avenue, and to this was added the story of a serious financial dispute between Mrs. Grace W. Savage, beautiful wife of Dr. Savage, and "Dan" Sully, over his management of $15,000 which she entrusted to him for investment in May, 1906, and for which she now has only a certificate of stock in a defunct soap company.

Mrs. Savage sued Mr. Sully, and she told on the witness stand how she had understood that her money was to be invested in cotton. It was so invested at first, but presently she learned that the investment had been changed to stock in the Buchanan Soap Company, which was going to make millions of everybody who engaged in it.

Never Liked Soaps. Mrs. Savage declared that she never liked "soaps," and often asked Mr. Sully to take her money out of soaps and reinvest it in something that would earn dividends, as she needed the income which her little fortune ought to earn.

Dr. Savage testified in his wife's behalf. He told of a visit with her to Sully's office when Sully showed them how the sales of soap had increased from $5,000 to $15,000 cases.

"But he showed nothing of profit," said Dr. Savage. "He urged Mrs. Savage to leave her money in soaps. She wanted it out, and told Mr. Sully to take it out, as it was not earning anything."

"What reason had Mrs. Savage for leaving her money in the stock for which she held a certificate for fourteen months before she found any fault?" asked Justice O'Gorman.

"Why, she and Mrs. Sully were intimate," replied the doctor. "We visited them at their apartments, but I had always understood that she had wanted her money in cotton and that it was in cotton."

This brought Mrs. Savage back to the stand, and then followed the reading of letters which formed the most marvelous mixture of social courtesy and business formality imaginable. Mrs. Savage said that when she called at Sully's office the employees reported to her that Mr. Sully was out of town, so she wrote to him.

There were several letters. She had kept the certificate because it was the only receipt she had for her money. In one letter—the first one—she told "Dear Mr. Sully" that she wanted to leave $5,000 in soaps, but must have the rest of her money.

Scolds Mr. Sully. On April 20, 1907, she wrote: "I am amazed and hurt and I can't understand why you have treated me so. Why do you not like a man and a thoroughbred return my money to me?"

Shortly after this the Buchanan Soap Company went to the wall, and that pretty certificate of stock is all that Mrs. Savage, the former friend of Mrs. Sully, has for her investment of $15,000.

BESSIE MCCOY URGES COURT TO LET ACTRESS GO

Star Pleads for Woman Who Obtained Money in Her Name.

Bessie McCoy, star of the "Three Twins" musical show, was a witness to-day in the Court of Special Sessions. Miss McCoy made a distinct sensation during the half hour she spent on the stand. She wore a big black hat with a long blue plume in it, a black coat, big buckled shoes and a black suit.

Virginia Drew, who gave her address as No. 857 Eighth avenue and who had once been an actress, went into the Hotel Reisenweber, where Miss McCoy lives, on Feb. 15 and collected $2 from the cashier, George W. Becker, on a package which she said contained goods for Miss McCoy. When the parcel was opened it contained only old newspapers.

Miss Drew had been locked up ever since. To-day she pleaded guilty to obtaining money by false pretenses, but claimed that she had only worked the deception as a joke.

Miss McCoy took the stand to say that she was willing to accept Miss Drew's explanation as truthful and to regard the whole transaction as a bit of pleasantry. She had known the other woman when Miss Drew was in more prosperous circumstances, and the little musical comedy star did her level best to influence the Justices to let the prisoner go.

Miss Drew was remanded until March 2. In the mean time the probation officer will look into her mode of life, and it is possible that as a result of Miss McCoy's pleas she may go free on a suspended sentence. The Drew girl is said to have been ill lately.

WOULD CORRAL O'HARA. Blaney Company Asks the Court to Limit Actor to Management.

Supreme Court Justice Fitzgerald to-day reserved decision in the application of the Charles E. Blaney amusement company for a permanent injunction restraining "Fiske" O'Hara from playing with any other amusement company. Cornelius J. Early, counsel for the actor, said that the trouble was that the academy, in Chicago, was not in the class of houses O'Hara had been used to playing in and he refused to play there.

COUSINS FIGHT WILL DISPOSING OF $5,000,000

Johnston Named Them All, but Left Bulk of Estate to One Man.

Augustus Van Wyck, representing eight heirs of the late Benjamin B. Johnston, began a contest before Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn to-day to set aside a will by which Mr. Johnston disposed of a fortune of about $5,000,000. The contestants live in Brooklyn and Monticello, Sullivan County.

Benjamin B. Johnston lived in Brooklyn, at No. 108 St. John's place, and had a country home at Greenport, L. I., where he died at the age of seventy-eight on Oct. 21, 1908. He left no brothers, sisters or children, his nearest of kin being cousins.

By a will signed on May 16, 1906, and witnessed by George W. Scott, of No. 705 West End avenue, and William L. Rowe, of No. 29 West One Hundred and Twenty-second street, Manhattan, Mr. Johnston left $13,000 in cash and houses and lots valued at about $300,000 to thirty-four beneficiaries, including the nine now contesting. The residue of the estate, valued at about $4,000,000, was left absolutely to Thomas S. Faulkner, of No. 183 Halsey street, Brooklyn, a cousin.

The contestants maintain that Mr. Johnston's act in making a will disposing of his property in the manner described was not a free or voluntary act and that at the time of signing the will he was not in his right mind. Richard Beebe, Samuel Beebe, Joseph Beebe Jr., Dewitt C. Beebe, Henry B. Rhodes, John W. Davis, Anna R. Palmer and Susan Clark, cousins of the testator, are making the contest.

George W. Scott, for twenty years Mr. Johnston's real estate manager, was the first witness called by Judge Van Wyck in to-day's proceedings. He was required to write the name of Benjamin B. Johnston Jr., a number of times under different circumstances after he had detailed how he had signed the will as a witness.

ALDERMAN AGAIN AFTER BINGHAM

Order to Police to Get New Revolver by March 1 Criticized in Board.

The Police Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which catibolised Commissioner Bingham last week, is on the job again. Chairman Bent declares the order of the Commissioner requiring members of the force to purchase new $14 revolvers by March 1 is unjust and unnecessary, and introduced a resolution to that effect at the meeting of the board to-day. It was referred to his committee.

"What is to become of the present revolvers, ordered by President Roosevelt when he was a Police Commissioner? Are they to be relegated to the scrap heap?" asked the Alderman. He contended that favoritism is to be shown to two manufacturers in the new order. The committee will now ask Bingham to explain.
